Dear Friends,

Welcome to Alameda County Community Food Bank’s 20th annual Savor the Season!

Today is an exciting day for our Food Bank, our Community, and for me personally. It’s not only my first “in person” Savor the Season — it’s ACCFB’s first in person event in three years! A lot of work went into being back together with you, and there truly aren’t words to share just how appreciative we are of you being with us today.

Alameda County Community Food Bank values and celebrates Community — our middle name — because we know that we are all better when we are together. Look no further than the last few years as volunteers, donors, agency partners, coalition partners, staff, and policymakers from the city to the federal government stepped up like never before to meet rising needs.

Thanks to you, we are a very different Food Bank than we were the last time we gathered together:

- The food we provide has grown from 28 million meals to nearly 50 million meals — a level we didn’t expect to be at for more than a decade, if ever.
- Our network of agency partners — the passionate organizations on the ground providing the food you help us procure — has grown to over 400 located throughout the county.
- Our pandemic relief programs like Home Delivered Groceries are now permanent parts of our work; and we’ve doubled down on our efforts to eradicate hunger through advocacy and anti-oppression work.

Savor the Season represents the best of a Community coming together. We are gathering for the purpose of ensuring each of us has the resources we all need to thrive. And today carries special meaning because — as we’ve learned over the last few challenging years — there is simply no substitute for sharing our collective passion for a hunger-free community in-person!

Today is a day of celebration and it’s our goal to offer you an opportunity to have fun while making a positive impact. Let us enjoy each other’s company — and do so in the spirit of achieving our common goal of eradicating hunger. Don’t be discouraged if you get outbid for that bottle of wine, that trip to the place you’ve longed to visit, or the autograph that will make you the envy of your friends. Just remember, raising your bid number again not only means you’re still in the running — it, most importantly, means even more healthy meals on even more tables in our community.

On behalf of our staff, partners, and Community — from the bottom of our collective hearts — thank you for joining us, and inspiring us every single day.

In Community,

Regi Young, Executive Director

Alameda County Community Food Bank has been at the forefront of hunger relief efforts in the Bay Area since 1985. The Food Bank serves 1 in 4 Alameda County residents by distributing food through a network of nearly 400 food pantries, soup kitchens, and other community organizations, as well as direct distribution and COVID-relief programs including school-based, home delivery and drive-through distributions. This year, the Food Bank will distribute the equivalent of 45 million meals.

In addition to its extensive emergency food programming, ACCFB’s hunger-relief efforts include California’s largest CalFresh (food stamps) outreach department and a robust advocacy team which works with elected officials to seek long-term solutions to hunger and poverty.

Our strength lies in partnerships with individuals, volunteers, agency partners, government, corporate and foundation supporters, and more. Together, we are pursuing groundbreaking solutions to not only end hunger, but to reach and improve the lives of more people than ever before.
